Changes to the formula aim to make it more equitable and more efficient. According to Regulation 1150, the formula must be approved by the State Board of Education.

Board members asked if the formula would allow more flexibility for schools, if the proposed formula will incentivize efficiencies, and if there are any challenges or negative aspects of shifting the formula. D. Delaware Literacy Plan

Dr. Christine Alois, Department of Education's Deputy Secretary, provided an overview of the Delaware Literacy Plan. She noted that the plan aligns with the Board's strategic priority around early literacy. Dr. Alois shared that many community organizations are supporting literacy and that Delaware needed a plan created by educators to allow a platform for these groups to plug into. She highlighted the four strategic intents to meet the goal of literacy: aligning instruction to standards, using high-quality instructional materials, enhancing early literacy instruction, and supporting educators through institutes of higher learning.

Board members asked about the definition of high-quality instructional materials (HQIM), what the Department is seeing in the field related to HQIM, and how the Department can support districts to choose, adopt, and implement HQIM.
